How Garfield Progresses.

Washington, Sept. 1, 7.30 a. m.—Information received from the physicians' room is to the effect that the President's condition this morning indicates continued improvement. He slept well during the night and this morning his pulse is below 100.

OFFICIAL BULLETINS.

Executive Mansion, 8.30 a. m.—Towards 9 o'clock last evening the President had some feverishness and his pulse ranged from 108 to 116. This condition which was unaccompanied by rigors or sweating had subsided by midnight and did not interfere with his sleep. He had on the whole a good night and this morning his condition is fully as favorable as yesterday at the same hour. Pulse 100, temperature 98.4, respiration 17.

Executive Mansion, 12.30 p. m.—At the morning dressing the President's abscess of the parotid gland was found to be discharging freely. It looks well and continues to diminish in size. The state of the wound remains the same. His general condition is not materially changed from this hour yesterday except that his pulse is somewhat more frequent. Pulse 108, temperature 98.6, respiration 18.

WILL ARTHUR BE CALLED?

Now that confidence in the President's recovery is being restored the subject of executive business is again discussed, and in connection with it the probability and feasibility of General Arthur being called upon to act as President until Garfield sufficiently recovers to warrant his resumption of executive duties. The fact cannot well be overlooked that in every department matters are in statu quo that require the attention of the chief executive. How long they can remain so without positive detriment to the public interests is a question that must be settled soon. Although it is positively known that no meeting of the Cabinet has been held or called to discuss this subject, yet it is acknowledged by Cabinet officers that informal exchanges of opinion have been indulged in, and it has been found that grave differences exist as to the wisdom of such a step. Not the least consideration being the possible effect upon Garfield in his present weak state, if, as must necessarily be, matters be called to his attention. It is well known then, notwithstanding the assurance of his physicians and friends, that public business is in no way suffering through his continued disability. He nevertheless thinks much upon the subject, and no better evidence is needed than the fact that during his recent critical condition his incoherent utterances were constantly and entirely relative to public matters, and it is feared his recovery might be seriously retarded by the knowledge that it was deemed necessary for him to perform his constitutional duties. It is safe to say this step will not be advised by the Cabinet at present, as the President's symptoms continue favorable.

NOT QUITE SO WELL.

Executive Mansion, 2.30 p. m.—The surgeons report no material change in the President since the noon bulletin. They think with the exception of a somewhat higher pulse he is doing as well to-day as yesterday.

WHAT HE ATE YESTERDAY.

Executive Mansion, Sept. 1.—The President is having a quiet and comfortable day. He chewed another piece of beef steak and swallowed the juice early this morning. Since then he has eaten a little chicken cooked in milk beside the usual beef extract and porridge. All his symptoms continue favorable.

WHAT BOYNTON THINKS.

In conversing this morning Dr. Boynton said the President is doing as nicely as they could wish. The slight fever which occurred last evening was not, Dr. Boynton thinks, a matter of any great consequence. Its duration was transient and it was nothing more than one of the fluctuations which are to be anticipated as long as the President remains in his present weak state. He has not gained much bodily strength. I think he made a little progress in that respect yesterday, as much as we could reasonably expect. His general appearance, however, has improved considerably. The gland this morning looks well. He is not nervous and the sudden roar of a passing train would not shock him. Noises in his room shock him less than they would a well person. The chief danger is overtaxing his strength. Possibly he will be first taken to Long Branch or some northern seaside resort. He is quite as well as yesterday. There is no danger from the opening into the mouth. The wound is doing well but not discharging as much as I would like. If he progresses rapidly for a few days he may be moved within a week and could go by water or rail without injury.

NO CHANGE.

Executive Mansion, Washington, D. C., 6.30 p. m.—The condition of the President has not materially changed since the last bulletin, except that there has been a moderate rise of temperature this afternoon. It having been represented to us that a portion of this morning's bulletin has been misunderstood, we would state that the President has had no rigors for several weeks. At present his pulse is 108, temperature 99.4, respiration 18.

BLAINE TO LOWELL.

Washington, D. C., 9.30 p. m.—The President continues to do well in his eating and digestion, and the swollen gland steadily improves, but in the past twenty-four hours he has made no substantial progress in general condition. In the judgment of his physicians, however, he still holds the ground gained Sunday and Monday last. Pulse and temperature to-day have shown a marked increase over yesterday. The weather has been exceedingly warm and sultry. This may account for the adverse changes noted. Even in the September climate at Washington such oppressive days as this have been rare. (Signed) BLAINE, Sec'y.

A CHARCOAL LIE.

New York, Sept. 1.—The Tribune's Washington story of Hamilton's using charcoal for charcoal, sent yesterday, is now pronounced a fine fabrication from beginning to end. No such circumstance ever occurred.

THEY THINK OF MOVING HIM IN TEN DAYS.

New York, Sept. 1.—The Times' Washington special says the surgeons are of the opinion that the President can be removed from Washington in about ten days if he should continue his present rate of progress.

Action of the N. Y. Republican Committee.

New York, Sept. 1.—It has transpired that the Republican State Committee which met yesterday and called a State Convention for New York City, October 5th, never once mentioned the name of Garfield or the fact of his attempted assassination. The committee stood nineteen stalwarts and eleven administration men. Vice-President Arthur, who is chairman, was absent.

A reporter called upon a number of Republicans this morning and talked with them about the meeting of the Republican State Committee. Collector Robertson said the proceedings of the committee of yesterday were very harmonious, and although the stalwarts carried out their pre-arranged programme and this city was chosen as the place for holding the convention, it was by a bare majority. He thought this city was preferred by the stalwarts because they are stronger here than anywhere else in the State.

"I do not think they will resort to any extreme measures to control the convention from the sentiments expressed yesterday. I am led to believe that there has been an earnest effort made on the part of both elements in part to heal all differences and select a ticket which will receive the support of all Republicans throughout the State. If this be done we shall certainly carry the State in November."

When asked about the failure of the committee to pass any resolutions of sympathy with the wounded President the collector said:

"I think it was merely an oversight. It is to be regretted, certainly, that a body of Republicans of the State of New York should make such a mistake. But I cannot think it was intentional. Before the committee met I spoke of this matter to Mr. Voorman, and I understood him to say that some one present held a set of resolutions prepared which would be presented to the committee after formal business was over. Several members were discussing this question among themselves when a motion to adjourn was carried. Had I known no resolution would be presented I would have presented a short resolution myself. I cannot believe this motion was made to prevent the introduction of such resolutions."

Other gentlemen spoken to regret the omission of Garfield resolutions, and attach no importance to the selection of New York City as the place for holding the convention.

Report of the Cattle Commission.

Chicago, Sept. 1.—The United States Commissioners to examine into cattle diseases, particularly pleuro-pneumonia, held a session and read many reports from various sections of the country, and compared notes of their observations. The opinion was informally expressed that there was not and never had been any pleuro-pneumonia west of Elmira, N. Y., and that Western farmers should be warned against purchasing blooded stock in the Eastern States unless they were sure it was not infected, as the disease was undoubtedly contagious.

Gas Explosion.

Grand Haven, Mich., Sept. 1.—The gas house of the Cutler House exploded to-day. The building was ruined, Chas. Cutler was fatally, J. H. Sharps badly and others seriously hurt.

Wild, Wrathful Waters.

THE STEAMER TEUTON'S HUMAN FREIGHT.

Capetown, Africa, Sept. 1.—The wrecked steamer Teuton had on board one hundred and forty-seven passengers and a crew of eighty persons. The vessel struck a rock, but floated off, and was in the act of putting back to port when she sank. A majority of those on board perished. All the officers were drowned. Three boats were lowered, one of which foundered alongside the steamer and the other two have arrived at Simonon, containing twenty-three of the crew and four passengers. The Union Mail Steamship Company states that twelve passengers were saved. The Teuton's boats which arrived at Simonon, lay on their oars till daylight, but nothing was to be seen of, and it is feared the third boat, with fifteen women and children on board, is lost.

FURTHER ADVICES.

London, Sept. 1.—In regard to the wreck of the Teuton near Quoin Point the company received a telegram announcing that another boat with second, third and fourth officers, three seamen, two firemen and one coolie arrived at Simonon. The occupants believe another boat with thirty women and children may still arrive. The steamer Danube goes in search of the survivors. The company hope the loss of life is not so great as at first estimated. They believe about fifty passengers for Kynsra were landed at Cape Town, to proceed to their destination in a smaller steamer. Most of the passengers were immigrants.

THE VICTIMS OF A STORM.

Savannah, Ga., Sept. 1.—Sixteen more inquests were held to-day on the bodies of persons drowned in the recent storm. This makes forty-six so far. The bodies of a white man, woman and child washed ashore at Tibere. A number of bodies are on a plantation near the city. The Coroner will hold inquests to-morrow.

THREE WENT DOWN IN MAINE.

Frebury, Me., Sept. 1.—Three young sons of Caleb and Samuel Dwigen and Andrew McLernard were drowned in the Saco River at Broadfield this afternoon.

Colorado Cullings.

CATTLE THIEVES.

Denver, Sept. 1.—Ranchmen from the vicinity of Brighton report that unknown parties are raiding cattle herds and stealing large numbers of Maverick calves which they kill and sell in the Denver market. The thieves' plan is to go to the herds at night, select several unbranded calves, load them into a wagon and bring them to Denver. The ranchmen claim that over fifty head have been stolen within the past few weeks.

THE CAPTURE OF BART WILKINSON.

Durango, Col., Sept. 1.—Bart Wilkinson, the murderer of Marshal Ogbury, was captured yesterday afternoon on the mesa about seven or eight miles northeast of Animas City by Marshal McCook and Deputy Sheriff Ike Stockton. He was lying on a pallet resting with his horse tied near by. Stockton covered him with his gun and ordered him to hold up his hands, which he did rather reluctantly, saying, "Ike, you have the drop on me." Cook manacled him and he was brought to Animas City last night. He was guarded by thirty men at Keith's City Hotel until this afternoon, when he was taken to the mountains northeast of town by Mayor Fox, Marshal Cook and a deputy for fear of lynching by a party from Durango or Silverton. The Silverton authorities were notified of the capture and are expected in to-night with the reward. Dyson Eskridge has not been captured. Parties are out for him who will not return without him. Wilkinson exonerates Eskridge from having had any hand in the shooting. He says all he wants is a fair trial. He is not likely to get it.

Singular Suicide.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1.—Quite a remarkable suicide occurred a few miles from Ithaca, Gratiot County, Sunday, by a man named Martin K. Walker, who lived on a small farm there. He was formerly a prosperous stock-raiser in California, but sixteen years ago came east and five years ago settled on the place of his last residence. Drink and gambling were his besetting sins, and finally he lost pretty much all of the little property remaining. Last June he went into a field, stripped himself, set fire to a brush heap, placed a gun to his head and snapped it three times without discharging it, intending to kill himself and allow his body to fall on the burning pile. Sunday last he carried this singular attempt at suicide into effect. He was found with the top of his head blown off and his naked body partly burned on a blazing heap of brush which he kindled. He left letters announcing his determination, expressing confirmed hopelessness as to himself, and warning his children to avoid whiskey. He leaves a wife and several grown up children.

A Convent Consumed.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 1.—The Republican's Manitowoc special says: During a heavy thunder storm last night a large convent at Silver Lake was struck by lightning and was soon in ashes. About eighty persons were in the building at the time and all escaped without injury. Loss, $65,000; insurance $35,000.

Ham Hurt.

Dover, Ia., Sept. 1.—In a quarrel resulting from a long standing feud an old man named Ham was shot by three Brown boys and possibly fatally hurt.

Attempt at Train Robbery Frustrated.

San Francisco, Sept. 1.—Yesterday's east bound express train was thrown from the track near Colfax for the purpose of robbery. Rails were removed and a portion of the train derailed. No one was hurt and the attempt at robbery was unsuccessful. No particulars yet.

LATER.

The following was received relative to the attempt to wreck the overland train. Two engines and one car of the east bound train were thrown from the track about 11:47 last night at Cape Horn by two rails being removed by highwaymen. When the engine left the track the fireman, upon jumping to the ground, was confronted by a man with a shot gun, who ordered him to stand and to not give the alarm. At the same time a man presented a gun at the express messenger who opened the door of the car and ordered him to surrender. About this time the highwaymen, supposed to be five or six in number, became alarmed and started to run off into the brush, leaving lanterns, masks, twenty-four cartridges of hercules powder, fuse, axe, sledge, pick and other tools. No one was injured. The train was delayed but eight hours.

FURTHER ADVICES.

Nothing can be added to previously reported facts except that on approach of the robbers the express messenger put out the lights, and the robbers, finding the attempt at surprise had failed left hastily in a wagon which they had in waiting. Officers are scouring the country in pursuit.
